

Royal Academy of Dance is a non-profit dance education organization founded in 1920 by a small group of celebrated European dancers. The academy has grown to become a global organization that exists to develop and promote the knowledge, understanding, and practice of dance internationally.

Every year over 250,000 students around the world participate in the academy's classical ballet examinations. RAD also offers dance teaching certification and diploma programs with nearly 1000 students world-wide currently enrolled.
